REGISTRATION FAILURE HERE

LESS THAN 90 PER CENT OF BIRTHS REPORTED.

MAKE ANOTHER TRY

Registering of Infants Is Compulsory By Law; Failure To Do So Subjects One to Fine.

Is your child registered?

Do you know what failure to register an infant means to you? To the infant? To the state? To the nation?

It is your duty to see that your child is Registered with the State Health Department.

Nodaway County is not in the Federal Birth Registration district for 1926, it was announced today by Dr. C. P. Fryer, county health physician, who is keenly disappointed at the county's failure.

The word of the failure was sent to Dr. Fryer through the state health department at Jefferson City.

"The Nodaway County Health Department, with the co-operation of the Parent Teachers Association and Federated Clubs has made strenuous efforts to secure 100 per cent registration of births that have occurred in the county during the year, but we have not as yet had even a 90 per cent registration as the law requires," Dr. Fryer said.

"We want to impress upon the parents that birth registration is compulsory and that it is of vital importance to have the birth of your child officially registered in the office of the Registrar of Vital Statistics at the Capitol at Jefferson City.

"By registration, vital statistics can be compiled which means so much to a state for future reference in regard to an increase or decrease of population or in other words bookkeeping of humanity.

"Under Section 6676, Laws Concerning the Registration of Deaths and Births: It shall be the duty of attending physician or midwife to file a certificate of birth properly and completely filled out, giving all the particulars required by this article with the local registrar of the district in which the birth occurred within ten days after date of birth. And if there be no attending physician or midwife then it will be the duty of the father or mother of the child, householder or owner of the premises, manager or superintendent of public or private institutions in which the birth occurred to notify the local registrar within ten days after the birth of the fact of such birth having occurred. It shall then, in such case, be the duty of the local registrar to secure the necessary information and signature to make a proper certificate.

"Any one failing to do so shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than five dollars or more than fifty dollars.

"We are publishing a list of births by districts occurring in Nodaway County for the year of 1926. This list is published with the hope that someone who reads will recall some infant born in 1926 in his or her community that has not been registered. If you do recall any births that you know or have reason to believe that has not been reported we would appreciate your calling the Nodaway County Health Department so that we can investigate and make sure of proper registration."

The list follows:

MISS BARBER HEADS ALUMNI

SKIDMORE GIRL ELECTED AT S. T. C. BANQUET LAST NIGHT.

THE TOASTS IN SONG

Picture Show Another Feature of Annual Gathering.—John Rush to Executive Committee.

Miss Viola Barber of Skidmore is the new president of the alumni association at the State Teachers College. Miss Barber was promoted to the presidency of the association at the annual alumni banquet held at 7:30 o'clock last night at the College Residence Hall. C. T. Richards of Pattonsburg, the toastmaster last night, was the retiring president.

It is the policy of the association to promote the senior member of the executive committee to the presidency each year. Next year the honor will go to Leslie G. Somerville, Nodaway County superintendent of schools.

John Rush of Barnard was elected as the new member of the executive committee last night.

The banquet was the outstanding one in the history of the alumni association. Last year eighty-four persons attended. Last night covers were laid for 154 alumni and faculty members of the institution.

Bert Cooper, director of extension at the College, is secretary of the association. Mrs. Ralph Marcell was chairman of the committee in charge of last night's affair.

The following four lines describe the unique manner in which the program was carried out:

"Toasts give zest to the banquet
If the speeches are not too long.
This year we take no chances—
We give our toasts in song."

There were songs to the College, the graduating class, President Uel W. Lamkin, the good old days, the long walk, and to memories, and the program concluded with a picture show, "As Is; As Was; As Ought to Be." This included humorous views of students and faculty members of the school.

Following is the menu, which was served by student assistants at the Residence Hall:

Fruit cocktail
Roast chicken gravy
mashed potatoes dressing
green beans mint ice sweet pickles
apple jelly butter rolls combination salad cheese straws ice cream with strawberries frosted white cake mints
salted almonds coffee

The classes were arranged at various tables. The earliest class represented was 1906.

A feature of the banquet enjoyed was given by faculty members. Each gave the yell of his particular school. Among the yells given were those of Yale, Harvard, Missouri, Kansas, Chicago, Northwestern and Wisconsin.

John Rush was elected to membership of the board of control.

NO MONEY ON SMALL FARM, SAYS BABSON

Only Solution of Problem Is Consolidation, He Declares.—A Good Place for Children.

Omaha, May 25.—The small farmer might just as well realize now he can never make money on a farm, Arthur Babson, economist, declared here today. Small farms are economically unsound, he said.

"The only solution for the farmer's problem is for him to consolidate into one big corporation, something like the United Steel Corporation," Babson said. "Cooperative marketing may help some but is not the remedy."

The small farm is the best place in the world to raise children, Babson said, in deploring the passing of the small landowners.

The McNary-Haugen bill is "the bunk" and wouldn't help the situation, the economist concluded.

COOLIDGE TO BLACK HILLS

PRESIDENT CHOOSES SOUTH DAKOTA AS VACATION SITE.

FAR OFF BEATEN PATH

Decision Is Hailed as Smart Politics.—State Will Be First to Select Delegates.

Washington, May 25.—Within taree weeks, President Coolidge intends to take his fishing rod and hide from the politicians in the remote Black Hills of South Dakota on the western rim of the dissatisfied farm belt.

There, fourteen miles from a railroad and far off the main line of travel, he will be secure from the frequent White House callers and will be on the ground where the first delegates will be selected for the 1928 Republican convention.

The President's announcement that he will, if possible, seek this rustic retreat, has startled and mystified politicians here, even though they admit that South Dakota is probably the best place he could have picked from a political standpoint.

Third Time in History.

It will be the third time a President has ever gone to such an inaccessible spot for his vacation.

The summer White House will be established about the middle of June, according to President Coolidge's present plans, which are dependent upon the creation of sufficient accommodations for the White House force and those who will accompany him on his vacation.

Mr. Coolidge tentatively has accepted the state lodge from the state of South Dakota, provided there are proper housing facilities for the clerks, secret service and newspaper men in striking distance of the lodge. If they are not supplied he will go to Colorado Springs, although every indication points to the final selection of the hills of South Dakota.

In a State Forest Reserve.

The place offered by South Dakota is a 30-room lodge standing within the state forest preserve. It is 4,550 feet above sea level, on an easily accessible highway. The nearest railroad point is Custer, sixteen miles away, while Rapid City, a town of 8,000 is thirty-two miles away. The lodge has been used as a hotel and several rooms have been set aside for the governor and his family.

The Black Hills are said to be the highest among the mountain ranges east of the Rockies. They are dotted with blue spruce and Norway pine and abound in scenery. The lodge is in a game preserve of ⅛ million acres, surrounded by a fence. It contains several thousand deer, elk and buffalo and is the rendezvous of many wild birds. It has several well-stocked trout streams where fishing is allowed, but shooting is prohibited.

Especially Stocked For Coolidge.

One of the creeks flowing through the preserve at the very door of the lodge has been stocked especially with rainbow trout for the President's sport. It is more than two miles long and has a dam at either end, so none of the fish placed in the stream in the last few months have escaped. Senator Peter Norbeck of South Dakota has assured the President he would get the best fishing of his life, be cool and comfortable in the daytime and sleep under blankets.

Leave for Summer.

Mrs. C. C. Lawrence and children, Ruth, Thomas and Robert, left today for Mound City, where they will spend the summer. They will return in time for school this fall.

Moscow Silent Over Expected Anglo Break

Russia Appears Resentful Against Great Britain—Resolutions Demand Severe Reprisal.

Nevertheless, United States recognition of Russia has been made even more improbable by Great Britain's break with the soviet government.

EGG PRICES AT LOW MARK

PRODUCERS GET BUT 15 CENTS A DOZEN.

HENS WORK OVERTIME

Big Surplus is Cause for Drop, Dealers Say.—Period for Best Storage Eggs Is Past.

There are too many hens, or the hens are working overtime.

This was the explanation of produce dealers for eggs dropping to 15 cents a dozen. It was unofficially reported by one dealer that it was the lowest price for eggs since June, 1922.

Fifteen cents is the wholesale price. The retail price at grocery stores was 20 cents a dozen.

The drop today was a cent under yesterday and a 2 cent drop from the week-end price of 17 cents a dozen.

Eggs held to the 17-cent mark for a considerable time this spring—during the period when the eggs are best for storage. The best eggs for storage purposes are put on the market between March 15 and May 15, dealers said. However, many eggs are being sold for storage now.

The lowest wholesale price for eggs last year was 19 cents and when they fell to 18 cents this last February, when the mercury was 2 below, poultrymen felt the price was at the bottom.

When asked today why the drop to 15 cents, a produce dealer said, "just too darn many of them."

The receipts on the Chicago market yesterday were about 50,000 cases.

Flood relief headquarters at Baton Rouge reported no loss of life, although the flood rushed over the parish at a terrific speed. Most of the threatened area has been evacuated.

A fleet of coast guard launches and outbound motor craft were tied up at the levee south of Old River, ready to patrol the area as soon as the flood reaches sufficient depth. Major John Gotwals commands the fleet.

What Other Editors Say

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER.

When it is a matter of life and death struggle with most people, they will turn to religion. Mrs. Ruth Snyder, who was an accomplice in the slaying of her husband, has announced that she will adopt a religious faith. For this she might be commended, but it would have been a far happier ending of her life had she paid some attention to religion sooner.—Jefferson City Post-Tribune.

THE ROAD SIGNS.

Increased aid to the motorist may be said to be the object of the latest attempt of automobile manufacturers in taking official cognizance of highway and traffic conditions. The most recent endeavor is concerned with the task of doing away with the indecision at crossroads as evidence of both good business and responsibility. Delegates of fifty-seven American cities went on record as unanimously favoring a national movement for uniform road signs.

Uniform signs would certainly do away with much of the perplexity which arises from the multitude of road signs now in use. People are often misled by the use of different devices by different states and frequently drive miles out of the way before the mistake is discovered. With the ever increasing amount of automobile travel, every method for easing the path and difficulties of the motorist should be adopted.—Columbia Evening Missourian.

"There is no more remarkable contrast presented in this country at the present time than that between the general efficiency of business and the general inefficiency of government," says Samuel O. Dunn, editor of the Railway Age, "and yet there is a constantly growing tendency for our governments to increase their interference with business, and a constantly declining disposition of business men to participate in governmental affairs. May we not reasonably regard with serious apprehension the probable future consequences of our inefficient governments interfering more and more with business, and of the most efficient part of our citizenship refraining more and more from contributing what they can to make government efficient?"

BARBS

A husband-calling contest was the feature of an Iowa fair recently. We thought from the headline that there had been some trouble somewhere over a bridge game.

Women in a New Jersey city, backing a candidate for director of public safety, kissed all the commissioners to elect him. Pretty sott.

Some day a public official is going to Hawaii and escape without having his picture taken with a leis. That will be news.

The Chinese invented gunpowder. After the rest of the world tried it out, they evidently have decided it's jolly stuff.

If we ever start copying Hawaii, even New York will be able to scrape up enough grass for a skirt.

Rotarians Sail for Meeting in Belgium

Six Liners Carry Largest Peace Time Delegation of Americans to International Convention.

New York, May 25. — The largest peace time fleet ever engaged to carry Americans to Europe will sail out of New York harbor late today and early tomorrow carrying business and professional men from North America and their families to the convention of Rotary International which opens in Ostend, Belgium, June 5.

More than three thousand passengers will be on board the six Cunard liners when they set sail. Practically every state in the Union and most of the provinces in Canada are represented on the passenger lists. Every mile of transportation from the East river piers to the hotel lobbies in Ostend, and every step in the baggage handling has been arranged months in advance.

Hotel rooms will be assigned on ship board for the stay in Ostend and a "Rotary commander" assigned to each ship will hand out in mid ocean the keys to the hotel rooms his passengers are to occupy when they disembark.

The convention itself, which will be opened by King Albert of Belgium, will be the first held on the European continent. It will be the first convention where Rotarians from North America will not make up the greater part of the gathering.

The program will include discussions of business ethics, community and national service, and the establishment of international friendship through a world fellowship of business and professional men.

Special trains are being run to carry Rotary parties from Holland, Spain and Italy to the meeting. Word has been received than more than 80 per cent of the Holland Rotarians will be in attendance. The Japanese delegation will arrive at practically the same time as the Rotary fleet from North America. It will come by rail, however. The Japanese plan to take the first through train to run from Tokyo to Paris, which arrives in the French capital June 5. A delegation of more than 5,000 is expected from the British Isles.

Pink Jewelry the Thing for Summer

By HEDDA HOYT
(United Press Fashion Editor)

New York, May 25.—(United Press).—The summer of 1927 will be a season for pink jewelry. One can't recall a time when pink has been the popular jewelry color that it is today. Perhaps the reason for pink's popularity is the present fashion for flesh pink tones in millinery, afternoon gowns and trimmings.

To my mind the most beautiful pink jewel is turmaline but this is beyond the means of the average woman. However, turmaline bead necklaces, turmaline rings, bracelets and earrings are among the most coveted of costume jewels at present. Next in importance to turmaline is rose quartz. Rose quartz is a pale cloudy-pink, semi-precious stone which is most flattering to everyone. Chokers made of rather large carved rose quartz beads with large rose quartz fastenings which are worn at the front of the neck, are beautiful While they are not especially cheap since they are semi-precious, they can be worn with summery frocks for many years.

Old fashioned coral jewelry is also fashionable. One sees corals in antique settings in some of the smartest shops. For instance, one shop has a choker and matching bracelet made of tiny coral rosebuds set in oxidized silver ovals held together by tiny silver chain. Coral flower brooches such as our grandmothers wore are being worn on the shoulder instead of a corsage.

Rose pearls in choker and long lengths are also popular. Brilliant pink pearls are not as well liked as the paler pink tints. Pearls in pale green, pale orchid and pale yellowish tones are also shown although pink tones are preferable this summer.

Next in importance to pink is amethyst colored jewelry. First, there are the real amethyst chains of solid beads or the carved amethyst chokers. Amethyst, like rose quartz, can hardly be called department store jewelry, although a few of the shops include it in their displays. It is in oriental shops that one usually finds these imported semi-precious jewels. There are some necklaces of clear amethyst glass, often called crystal, which look very well. Pale amethyst pearls are also to be found. But when one reaches the stage where imitation jewelry is distasteful because of its commonplaceness, let us suggest some of the semi-precious necklaces, ring or bracelets which hase real value and which can be worn a life time. The amount one dribbles away on cheap jewelry in a season will buy a piece of jewelry that has some value. Among the ever popular semi-precious stones which can be found in bead form are jade, turmaline amethyst, rose quartz, carnelian, calcedony, turquoise matrix, lapis lazuli and amber.

Morris S. Snierson, who has been attending the State Teachers College, left Monday night for St. Albans, Vt.

Menus for the Family

By SISTER MARY

BREAKFAST—Stewed dried apricots, cereal, cream, spinach with poached eggs on toast, crisp graham toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Vegetable loaf, head lettuce with French dressing, cocoanut custard pie, milk, tea.

DINNER—Casserole of lamb and vegetables, watercress salad, strawberry shortcake, milk, coffee.

Cocoanut Custard Pie

One cup canned shredded cocoanut, ¾ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3 eggs, ¾ cup milk, ¼ teaspoon vanilla, ¾ cup flour, 3 tablespoons lard, 1-3 teaspoon salt, cold water.

Mix and sift flour and salt and rub in flour, using tips of fingers or a pastry mixed. Rub lightly. Add cold water, about 1½ tablespoonfuls and work into a dough, handling as little as possible. With the hands, form into a flat round cake. Roll on a lightly floured molding board, turning a quarterround frequently to keep the shape round. Fold one side over the other and place on a pie dish. The fold should be in the center of the dish. Open out and fit the dough down into the dish. Do not stretch the dough and take care not to break it. Fold and crimp edge of dough and place on ice while preparing the filling.

Beat yolks until thick, gradually beating in sugar and salf sifted together. Fold in the whites of the eggs beaten until stiff and add cocoanut, vanilla and milk which has been heated to the scalding point. Mix thoroughly, being sure the sugar is dissolved. Pour into the pie dish lined with pastry and bake in a hot oven for ten minutes. Then reduce heat and bake thirty to forty minutes. Serve cold.

The rule will fill a seven-inch pie dish. The oven temperature should be 450 degrees F. when pie is put in and for the first ten minutes, and reduce to 375 degrees F. to finish baking.

Treatment of T. B. in Child Discussed

Juvenile Type Distinct From Adult, Doctors at National Meeting Point Out.

Indianapolis, May 25.—Two distinct types of tuberculosis, the juvenile and the adult, were traced by Dr. Eugene L. Opie of Philadelphia, today in an address before the twenty-third annual meeting of the National Tuberculosis Association here.

"Juvenile or childhood tuberculosis, is generally limited to the ages of two to sixteen," said Dr. Opie, "though the adult type sometimes occurs at earlier years."

"The childhood form of tuberculosis usually appears in the tracheo-bronchiel nodes at the root of the lung and is very difficult to diagnose. It appears in the form of calcified nodules which may be detected by the X-ray. Whenever these nodules are present, there is always danger that the child may develop a more adult or serious type of tuberculosis. This juvenile form of itself is not so dangerous, but if it is left without diagnosis or proper treatment, it is almost sure to develop into a more deadly disease. The juvenile form of tuberculosis is found most frequently in families where one or more of the adult members have the disease and convey to the children massive doses of tuberculosis germs."

Dr. Walter L. Rathbun of Cassadaga, New York, speaking on the same subject, stated that between three and four per cent of the children of the public schools of Chautauqua County, New York, whom he had examined, showed evidence of the juvenile forms of tuberculosis, and that there was aparently no difference between children living in urban or rural countries.

"We have found," he stated, "that robust health during childhood, does not protect infected children against the adult form of tuberculosis during their teens."

Treatment of the juvenile type of tuberculosis as outlined by Dr. Opie, Dr. Rathbun, Dr. F. Maurice McPhedran of Philadelphia and Dr. J. A. Myers of Minneapolis, consists first of all in isolating the children from the infecting carrier of the disease, and secondly, in prescribing a modified regulated regime of life, with extra hours of rest and careful supervision of diet until these children reach adult life. Dr. Rathbun strongly urged against allowing students to participate in high school competitive athletics until they have been declared free from any touch of juvenile tuberculosis. Open-air schools, preventoriums and summer health camps were highly recommended as a means of treatment.

President's Son Is "Butch" to Friends

Amherst, Mass., May 25.—"Butch" is John Coolidge's nickname at Amherst College where he is a member of the junior class, that and many other hitherto unknown facts about the President's son became public through publication of the Junior class year book, of which John is an editor.

Young Coolidge's chaperone, oft repeated marriage engagement, and now famous boxing bout were all mirthfully referred to by schoolmates in the year book column dedicated to the "first lad of the land."

"Coolidge came to school with a second hand pea jacket, a schoolgirl complexion and an air of perfect boredom," the year book said. "These possessions he has jealously guarded and has augmented them in his three years with a very slight knowledge of the saxophone, a slighter knowledge of the art of pugilism, some 7000 scented letters from admiring girls and a scrap book bulging with newspaper clippings, arranged alphabetically from 'elopment' to 'secret service.'

Blaggs to Iowa City.

Mr. and Mrs. Edison Blagg and children, Billy and Betty, left this afternoon to motor to Iowa City, Ia., where they will visit Mrs. Blagg's sister, Miss Gertrude Wright. Mr. Blagg will return home Friday while Mrs. Blagg and children will visit there until next week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Castillo and daughter, Alfreda, of Elmo leave tomorrow for a trip to California, Oregon, Washington and Montana. They will return in time for school in the fall. They will visit Samuel Castillo in California, and other relatives.

Miss Helen Marjorie Ferguson of St. Joseph came yesterday to spend the remainder of the week with Mr. and Mrs. Kenney Tebow and to attend the alumni banquet of the State teachers College, from which she is a graduate.

The Rev. Philip Growney, O. S. B., a former Nodaway countian, who is now a member of Mt. Angel, Ore., has been spending several weeks' vacation in the county, and recently was visiting at Conception College, Conception, and Burlington Junction.

The Rev. and Mrs. F. J. Mapel of Cowgill, Mo., accompanied by their son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mapel, arrived in Maryville yesterday to spend a few days with their son, William L. Mapel, and family. The trip was made by automobile.

KING CITY TO INVITE WORLD

BIG PLANS MADE FOR ANNUAL BLUEGRASS FESTIVAL.

DATE SET IS JUNE 2

Senator James A. Reed And Louis V. Stigall Probably Speakers For Annual Event.

King City, Mo., May 25—The whole world's invited to King City's fifth annual Bluegrass Festival Thursday, June 2—the big free carnival of Northwest Missouri. Unless detained in Oregon by the continued illness of his sister, Senator James A. Reed will be the principal afternoon speaker. Louis V. Stigall, mayor of St. Joseph, also has been secured to speak either in the afternoon or at the annual bluegrass banquet at night.

Miss Isabel Blacklock, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. D. E. Blacklock of King City, will be crowned bluegrass queen of the world amid a beautiful bit of pageantry closing the afternoon program. The coronation will be staged on the beautiful high school campus, where a great open air stage is being built, with seats in the shady grove for an audience of thousands.

A mile-long parade at 2 o'clock in the afternoon will be the first feature of the program. Every business house, church, lodge, club and society in town is to be represented by a float in the parade, and cash prizes are to be awarded to the entries declared the best by a competent committee of judges. There will be at least two bands in the parade; one of them the Stanberry municipal band.

Amplifiers are being built on the stage so that the speaker's voice and the words and music of the coronation pageant may be heard all over the five-acre campus. If Senator Reed is able to reach King City in time for the program, it is believed he will be greeted by the largest crowd that ever was assembled in King City.

The bluegrass festival is held annually under the auspices of the King City Commercial club to celebrate the beginning of the harvest of bluegrass seed, King City claiming to be the center of the world's greatest bluegrass area. A new queen is chosen by popular ballot each spring for the coronation which features the annual festival.

Though considerable expense is incurred in its presentation, all is born by the Commercial club and the festival is free to everybody—all King City wants is a crowd.

Springfield Alumni Criticise President

Heated Session Is Held at Teachers College Banquet.—Hurting School Business Men Declare.

Springfield, Mo., May 25.—H. H. Martin, superintendent of schools at Ava, was elected president of the alumni association of Southwest Missouri State Teachers' college Monday night at one of the most heated sessions in the history of the organization. The meeting was climaxed by the introduction of a resolution that "President Roy Ellis can never administer the affairs of this college in such a way that it will render the proper service to this district."

The resolution was presented by Roy C. Evans, Cassville superintendent, after a motion to adjourn had been made and put to a standing vote.

Springfield, Mo., May 25.—Continued guerrilla warfare being carried on against President Roy Ellis and the board of regents of State Teachers' college, largely as a result of the forced dismissal of 18 teachers, is doing immeasurable harm to the school and city and all Southwest Missouri, in the opinion of a number of leading business men of Springfield.

A symposium presented by the Springfield Leader reveals a united belief that whether or not two sides to the controversy exist, continuation of the sniping tactics of disgruntled friends of the dismissed teachers can have no possible beneficial effect and is most harmful, to the interests of the school and city.

The time has come to end the warfare and give the school officials an opportunity to prove themselves capable or incapable, they say, deploring the flood of unfavorable publicity which has been broadcast as a result of the fight against the administration.

The criticism aimed at President Ellis is unjust and should be withheld until the newly elected president has had a chance to make good, the Leader was told. Authorized opinions of civic leaders voiced this morning are appended.

This and That

A chicken visited our office today. It did not stay long. It came in a flurry and no wonder—a group of boys and men followed the fowl here and of all the excitement!

Can the governor of Missouri take a joke? It appears that he can.

At the Round Table luncheon at the Maryville Country Club yesterday for Governor Sam A. Baker, time was short and the program consisted of story telling. Joseph Jackson started the ball rolling.

"A small boy," said the banker, "was down at the railroad station trying to sell some pups, but he wasn't having much luck. A traveling man stopped him and said:

"'Here, boy, what kind of pups have you got there?'

"'They're Republican pups,' the lad answered.

"'That's fine,' the traveling man said, and got on the train.

"About two weeks later the man was back, and he saw the same boy, still trying to sell the pups. Again he hailed him:

"'Here, son, what kind of pups have you got there?'

"'They're Democratic pups,' the boy answered.

"'Wait a minute,' the questioner challenged. 'Aren't you the same boy I asked that about two week's ago?'

"'Yes, sir.'

"'Aren't these the same pups?'

"'Yes, sir.'

"'Then why did you say then that they were Republican pups and say now that they are Democrat pups?'

"'Because,' said the boy, 'they've got their eyes open now'."

The governor was a good sport. He laughed at the jibe at his party, and then added a good one himself.

A farmer, said the governor, reported to the police that his smokehouse had been broken open and his meat stolen. "Some durn Republican did it," the farmer declared.

"Have you got an idea who did it?" he was asked.

"Nope."

"Then how do you know a Republican took your meat?" the "law" insisted.

"'Cause he took all of it," the farmer responded emphatically.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

BILLY WELLS, NYDA LOMAX, and WINNIE SHELTON, employes of the big Curtis department store, are taken into their employer's home as wards for one year because T. Q. CURTIS believes they have worthy ambitions which he wants to further.

Billy, who desires to become a concert violinist, is the only one that is sincerely ambitious. The others lie to enjoy T. Q.'s generosity. The girls accidentally learn that he intends adopting one of them when the year is up. A battle ensues for his affections and Billy is unwillingly drawn into it. This, coupled with her infatuation for DAL ROMAINE, nephew of MRS. MEADOWS, the hostess, causes her to lose interest in her violin.

In spite of her infatuation, she tenderly remembers CLAY CURTIS, son of her benefactor, who has disinherited himself and is living with the Wells family in the poor part of town, working in a factory by day and writing music at night. She loses interest in her music, and finally she has a breakdown.

While she is confined to her room, CONSTANCE BRADLEY, a well-bred, wealthy girl whom Billy admires tremendously, calls to see her and the two plan to go to a resort, Crescent Lake, for a month. Constance mentions during the conversation that Romaine has an interest in a gown shop. Billy is stunned at this information, because she has been induced by Romaine's flattering compliments to make extravagant purchases there. Winnie's appearance and manner when she returns from her mysterious week-end trip confirms Billy's suspicion that there is something between her and Dal Romaine. She is almost in hysterics with fear and suspicion, coupled with her terrible need for Dal's love.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Mignon, they won't let me see you," the note began abrutly.

CHAPTER 39

On Tuesday evening, while the other members of the Curtis household were at dinner, Viola, the maid brought Billy's tray to her bedside, grinning with wicked glee.

"Here your dinner, Miss Billy, and if you jes' happen to find a piece o' paper folded up in your napkin, I don't know nothin' about it."

The delicious dinner was destined to receive not one-tenth of the attention to which it was entitled. As soon as Viola had backed out of the room, Billy snatched up the napkin and shook it. Out of a blank envelope she drew a single sheet of notepaper, covered with the tiny, beautiful printing which had become so heart-shakingly familiar to her, though she had received only one other specimen of it before.

"Mignon, they won't let me see you," the note began abruptly, without a date. "T. Q. C. has forbidden me to write to you or to send you flowers. But I must see you. Aunt Lucia tells me you are going away for a month. Are you too ill to steal down to the garden to see me tonight? Oh, Mignon, darling, I'm starving for the sight of you, for the touch of your dear hands. I am willing you to come to me tonight, for just a few precious minutes. I shall be waiting for you in the old summerhouse at eleven. I can't let you go away for so many dreary weeks without telling you goodby. I love you. Dal."

Her dinner untouched, she lay for a long time, quite still, her body flushed with fever of anticipation. Magically, the very sight of his handwriting had wiped out all her sick despair.

Craftiness dictated her first actions after those long minutes of delicious anticipation. She worked with frantic haste for a few minutes—mashing spoonfuls of food upon her plate, scattering crumbs from the toast, pouring out a cup of the cooling chocolate. Then she disposed of most of the food in the bathroom, leaving just enough to deceive any observer into thinking she had eaten a fairly hearty meal. It did not occur to her to eat the food. The very sight of it was distasteful to her, in her state of frantic anticipation.

She was safely back in bed again when Viola called for the tray, and she smiled demurely when the colored girl exclaimed happily over the amount she had "eaten."

T. Q. and Mrs. Meadows paid her visits after dinner, and the old man was quite jubilant over the color in her cheeks and the sparkle in her eyes.

"If I didn't have the doctor's word for it, I'd swear you'd been playing 'possum on me," he told her fondly. "Get a good night's sleep now, Billikin, and be ready for your trip tomorrow. Here's a little check for incidentals," he added awkardly, tucking a folded slip of paper under her pillow.

He kissed her on both cheeks, and she could see that he was surprised and touched when she clung to him, crying brokenly: "Oh, you're so good to me, so good, so good!"

The check, which she unfolded with a flush of shame and eagerness, was for five hundred dollars—an extra month's allowance. How Nyda and Winnie would hate her if they knew!

At ten o'clock she locked her door while she dressed with trembling haste, even to shoes and stockings. Then she crept back into bed again, hiding her dress under a quilted satin dressing robe. She was innocently yawning over a book when Mrs. Meadows came to ask how she was feeling and to kiss her goodnight.

Nyda and Winnie had gone to a dance at the Country Club, Mrs. Meadows told her, and Mr. Curtis was working in the library. At half past ten Billy snapped off the reading light above her bed. She lay for long minutes, tense and quivering in the dark, passing the time by reciting twenty German poems she had memorized in high school. When she was sure that it was nearly eleven, she slipped out of her room noiselessly, turning the key in the lock and tucking it away safely in the pocket of her spring coat. Her head was swathed in a dark silk scarf. The treads of the servants' stairs creaked under her light steps, but she descended to the first floor without detection.

When she scurried past the butler's pantry, where Sawyers was locking up the silver for the night, the butler looked up, peered at her and called out cheerily, "That you, Clara? You know the rules—back by twelve, old girl."

Old girl! Billy chuckled and waved a hand in flippant farewell, and Sawyers was satisfied. Evidently he was a far more approchable being where Clara, the parlor maid, was concerned, than he was with the three "young mistresses" of the house. As she sped lightly across the lawn, Billy was surprised to find that her knes were wabbly. And she had thought she could run miles, if those miles led her to Dal Romaine!

"Mignon! God, I thought you wern't coming!" The deep voice that had the power to stir her as had no other sound in the world called out thrillingly to her as she hesitated, panting, at the door of the summerhouse.

She fell into his arms, flattened her body against his, flung back her head with a gesture of utter abandon for his kiss.

"Poor little Dal!" he crooned over her, as, through the light fabric of her coat his hands, straining her to him, discovered the almost painfully increased prominence of her ribs and shoulder blades. "You must not be eating a thing, child. Not sleeping either?"

"No," she shivered. "I can't eat. I hate food!" Her voice became suddenly violent. "Someone is always trying to make me eat! But I do wish I could sleep. Why can't I sleep, Dal?" She clung to him like a forlorn, frightened child.

His voice vibrated on the tender, dramatic note that always stirred her so profoundly: "Let's not talk about food in connection with you. I don't like to see a beautiful woman eat. So they're sending you away—so I can't keep you from eating and sleeping!" His voice became light, almost teasing. "Of course I had to see you, darling. You shivered! Are you cold?" He wrapped her coat, and then his arms, more tightly about her.

"Let's sit down." She struggled out of his arms, knowing that she could not talk to him while his thrilling hands were upon her.

He humored her, taking his place at the extreme end of the narrow bench she had chosen. By the light of the newly risen moon they could look into each other's eyes. A chill breeze lifted her hair from her forehead, which gleamed ghostly white in the moonlight. Whether it was the magic of the moon or the inner fire of triumph, she could not determine, but his eyes gleamed wide, like disks of black, polished stone.

"Dal, I want you to tell me the truth," she began breathlessly. "First, do you own an interest in Madame Dubois' modiste shop?"

"Why, yes, darling. The woman opened on a shoestring. I saw that she had a really marvelous clothes sense, knew how to buy and how to sell, and I put a little capital into the business." He spoke with utter candor.

"When?"

"When? Let's see—very recently. Oh, yes, two weeks ago today, to be perfectly exact. Oh, I see what's worrying you," he laughed indulgently. "You think I was acting as a sort of 'come-on' man for the firm when I took you there to buy your Belgian lace dress. you're wrong, darling. My profits—if I make any—will not include a percentage on that sale." His voice was light, casual, but she thought she detected a thin strain of sarcasm running through the careful words.

"Oh!" She had to accept his explanation. "I—I hope you will make some money there, Dal—if you need it."

"Don't we all?" His teeth gleamed in an amused smile. "Now what else is bothering the poor little head?"

"Did—did you really go to Chicago, Dal—and did you go—alone?"

"Why, Mignon! I don't understand you!" His voice was deep, hurt. "Of course you're ill, and I'm not going to say the obvious things about trusting the man you're engaged to be married to—"

"Oh, Dal! I'm sorry. I've been nearly crazy with doubt and suspicion—and lack of sleep—"She flung herself prone on the bench, so that her head lay on his knees. So he had taken it for granted all along that they were to be married! What a self-torturing, suspicious little fool she had been!

It was twelve o'clock when she crept back across the back lawn toward the house, alone, Dal watching her from the shadows of the summerhouse. She paused for a moment to wave to him, before darting into the servants' entrance at the rear of the house. When he had returned her signal, she glanced upward to the rows of windows, to see if a light burned anywhere in that wing of the mansion. What she saw caused her to freeze to immobility, unable to take a step.

A light burned in Nyda Lomax's room on the third floor, and out of the open window stepped a man, pulling the window shut as he straightened to his full height upon the small balcony. A fire escape led from the balcony to within a few feet of the ground, a precaution which T. Q. Curtis has insisted upon. Billy watched him vault lightly over the railing of the stone balcony, and begin to descend the fire escape, in a leisurely, accustomed manner, as if he had little or no fear of detection.

Before he had reached the ground, Billy was hurrying on frightened feet up the servants' stairs. A pencil of light under Nyda's door told her that either the room was occupied or that the man—whoever he was—had not taken the trouble to turn it off. She knocked, calling out softly, but in an urgent, frightened voice.

"It's me—Billy, Nyda! Are you there, Nyda?"

There was the sound of hasty footsteps, a closet door opened and shut, then Nyda, with a negligee thrown over her nightgown, flung open the door.

(To Be Continued).

Billy goes away and is restored to health and the conviction that Dal Romaine no longer can cast a spell on her. But she is wrong.

Burlington Junction

(By J. Howard Thompson)

Claude Greenlee and family of Kirksville, Mo., came Sunday night for a few days visit with Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Miller and family. Mrs. Greenlee is the daughter of Mrs. Miller. Mr. Greenlee is connected with the state finance department and at present is liquidating a defunct bank in Brookfield.

Many of the recent graduates of the local high school have definite arrangements made for entering school and college in September. Some will go to the State Teachers College in Maryville, and others will go elsewhere.

The date of the annual conference of the Methodist church for this part of Missouri is set for September 14, with Bishop Waldorf of Kansas City presiding. The conference will convene on the above date in Cameron.

At the beginning of this church year for the Methodists, the pastor, the Rev. J. Howard Thompson, organized a class of young men and boys for religious instruction, and there finally was entered in the class of 23 students, with an average attendance to date of eighteen. Last Monday the teacher took them on a picnic and fishing trip, west of town, and the day was very joyfully spent together. A number of the finney tribe was hooked during the day.

Verne Dolph, the city marshal for Burlington Junction, who with his family have been living in the George McKnight property in the north part of town, moved last week over in the west part of town and will now live in the Wray property.

The Methodists are planning a great day for one week from next Sunday, or June 5. They are rejoicing over the improved condition of their church building, and as a result, they will have special services in honor of that event. Dr. E. L. Robinson, the district superintendent of the St. Joseph district will be present and preach in the morning, following the Sunday school hour, and Dr. W. S. Woodhull, pastor of the Methodist church in Maryville, will preach at 2:30 in the afternoon. Immediately following the morning service, Dr. Robinson will hold the third quarterly conference, this to be followed with a basket dinner.

In recognition of their mother's sixty-fifth birthday last Sunday, the children and their families of Mrs. Elizabeth Larabee, came to her home in the east part of town, with well filled baskets and celebrated the event. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. John Pittman, and their family, daughter and son-in-law of Mrs. Larabee, of New Market, Ia.; Mr. and Mrs. Lee McClain and children, another daughter and her family of Tecumseh, Nebr., Mr. and Mrs. Phil Corken and family of Burlington Junction, still another daughter, and her family, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Larabee, and family of Elmo, Mo., and Frank Larabee, the youngest son. All report a very fine time.

The sum total of the Red Cross fund sent in to headquarters by the people of Burlington Junction is $113.85. There doubtless are others who will contribute. It ought not be less than $200. The need is very great. Monday's dailies are reporting 108,250 additional people who are greatly menaced by the merciless waters.

There is to be a third barber shop in town, as Floyd Watkins and Velmar Davault are opening a shop in the south room of the Maple hotel. Mr. Watkins, for the past two years has been barbering in the east shop on Main street, while Mr. Davault has recently taken a course in a barber's school in Sioux City, Ia. Both men are well known in and about Burlington Junction.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fleming were host and hostess to Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Currie, and Mrs. Everett Currie, and little son, Eugene, of Fairfax, last Sunday. Mrs. Everett Currie was Miss Mary Nichols of Quitman prior to her marriage to Mr. Currie.

The Rev. W. T. Wiley, a former pastor both at Clearmont and Elmo, of the Methodist church but now pastor of the Methodist church in Bosworth, Mo., was a recent over-night visitor with his daughter, Mrs. Herschel Houston. He had been called to Hopkins to attend a funeral service, and while in the county took advantage of the opportunity to visit his daughter and her family.

The Rev. A. L. Ragsdale and son, Otho, went to Camden Point last Monday to be present Monday night at the vocal recital given by his daughter, Catherine, who has been attending college at Camden Point this past year, and majoring in music.

Next Sunday being the annual Memorial Sunday, the two churches will have a union service in the morning immediately following the Sunday school in the Christian church, and the Rev. J. Howard Thompson, the pastor of the Methodist church will preach the sermon. All soldiers with their families and all widows of soldiers are most cordially invited to attend. Rev. A. L. Ragsdale, the pastor of the Christian church will preside at the service.

With more than half of the acreage for corn in this community yet not planted, the farmers are rushing their work. Every available bit of help that can be secured is being used in the fields these days in order that they may catch up with their work. Much of the corn is being listed and by that method time and toil can be economized.

The Rev. S. E. Shafer of Savannah came here last Monday night to assist the local pastor of the Methodist church, the Rev. J. Howard Thompson in the present campaign for Missouri Wesleyan College. The local campaign will be completed tonight.

The Hollis Brothers have a sand pump on the bank of the river west of town and are securing much sand for building purposes.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Severs with their two children: Maurice and Mildred went to Bedford, Ia., last Sunday morning and spent the day with Mr. Severs' father. They returned home on the evening of the same day. They report an enjoyable day.

Money is being subscribed by the business men and other citizens with which to hire the paved street to be kept clean of dirt and mud. This is a move in the right direction on account of defective drainage the street has been known to get in very bad condition during the wet days.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Jones recently celebrated their 57th wedding anniversary in Compton, Calif., where they have been spending the winter with one of their daughters. They have been residents of Nodaway County and Burlington Junction for many years. W. W. Jones and Jesse Jones here are their sons.

Loren Smith and his wife were host and hostess Sunday evening to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Everhart and daughter of Maryville. Mrs. Smith is also a daughter. She has been teaching in the grade school in the Burlington Junction schools for the past three years, but resigned her position at the close of the school year to accept a similar position with the schools in Tarkio. Later in the year, the Smiths will go to Tarkio to make their home.

Earlier in the spring a community wolf hunt was staged by the citizens of town and surrounding country with the result, as was supposed, that no wolf was bagged. However, a number were seen and all seem to have eluded their captors. But Earl Hollis and Charley Ferguson, being in close proximity to each other, saw the wolf trying to break through the lines and escape, and each took several shots at the animal, Mr. Ferguson shooting three times, and Earl Hollis twice, with the result that the wolf gave every evidence of being wounded, but escaped. This was on the Richard Tobin farm two miles east of town, and recently while one of Mr. Tobin's boys was working in the field came across the carcass of the wolf in the edge of a slough, where the wolf had dragged himself to die unnoticed. This is prima facie evidence that the hunt was not a fruitless one.

Prof. and Mrs. Harry B. Rutledge will soon leave for Columbia, Mo., for a few days when they will then go onto Dallas, Texas to make their home. They will have a public sale next Saturday night, when they will dispose of all their personal property. Mr. Rutledge will enter the employ of the Western Newspaper Union, with headquarters in Dallas, but will be on the road most of the time if not all the time. They have many friends here who will very greatly regret their permanently leaving the community.

The district conference of the St. Joseph district of the Methodist church will meet in session in Maitland, Mo., on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 7 and 8. Everything bids fair for a very large attendance. An unusually strong program has been arranged, and sent out to the various churches of the district.

Remember the basket dinner and third quarterly conference to be held in the Methodist church on Sunday, June 5. Good preaching and good fellowship will be the order of the day.

Ozark—A Health Committee has been organized for Christian County and will cooperate with the State Board of Health.

Standard Oil Company,
Kansas City, Mo.

Attention L. O. Hughes

Dear Sir: We have used your new ISO=VIS Motor Oil in our fleet of trucks for about forty days, and it gives me pleasure to say that we have found nothing that equals it. It is a product of merit and is entirely satisfactory in every way.

Yours very truly
E. R. Clark Coal Co.
E. C. Alexander

There is a reason—a good sound one—for the immediate popularity of Iso=Vis. Iso=Vis never thins out! It's a new motor oil with a new efficiency! Different from all the motor oils of the past. They all became diluted—even the best of them thinned out. Lost two-thirds of their viscosity before the car had gone 200 miles.

Iso=Vis—manufactured to meet a new theory of lubrication—maintains constant viscosity. That's why it is called a revolutionary motor oil. Iso=Vis solves the problem of dilution!

Iso=Vis does a thorough, efficient lubricating job every mile of every trip. That's what you should expect of a motor oil—but more than you can expect of any oil that dilutes.

Motorists like Iso=Vis because it keeps a car performing at its best all the time—ends dilution troubles—cuts repair bills—adds new smoothness and new pleasure to motoring! Try Iso=Vis and you'll like it too!

Iso=Vis costs a trifle more than ordinary oil—30c per quart—but a lot less per mile!

At any Standard Oil Service Station and at licensed garages.

Say Canal Would Raise Wheat Price

New York, May 25.—The price of wheat at Chicago would be increased twelve cents a bushel by the improvement of the St. Lawrence waterways system allowing sea going ships to call at Lake ports, according to a survey conducted by Farm and Fireside.

Previous estimates of this figure have ranged from nine to sixteen cents. The price of wheat is fixed at Liverpool and the price at Chicago is the Liverpool price minus the cost of transportation to Liverpool. According to this survey, the projected St. Lawrence seaway is 25 miles shorter than the present route and would result in a saving in transportation cost of 12.1 cents per bushel.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, May 25.—One of the most sensational trading episodes in years was witnessed on the Chicago board of trade today when all deliveries of wheat soared to new high levels within a few minutes after opening.

News of a tremendous advance of 17⅞ cents for May wheat at Winnipeg virtually flooded the pit with buying orders, quotations jumping 3¼ cents in two minutes. Trading was the most exciting in years, resembling the violent war time fluctuations, as traders, fighting like wild men, sought to fill orders. Tremendous profit taking and heavy selling in the last few minutes not only wiped out all gains but forced prices ¼ to 2½ cents lower than the previous close. The cash market was nervous but prices were about unchanged.

Corn advanced with wheat but did not hold the new highs. The cash market was ½ cent higher.

Oats took new life with the strength of other grains and advanced to new highs in futures of July and September deliveries. The cash market was ½ cent higher.

Provisions were lower.

Capper Scouts Idea of An Extra Session

Kansas City, Kan., May 25.—Calling of a special session of Congress to consider flood relief legislation would be a waste of time, according to Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas.

"When we go to Washington," Capper said, "we wouldn't know the extent of the damage or exact steps to be taken to prevent recurrence of the floods.

"If we wait until the next regular session we will have the report of Secretary Hoover, army engineers and officials of the states to guide us and constructive measures will then be possible."

ANNUAL TRADE MEET OPENS

JULIUS H. BARNES OPTIMISTIC ON WORLD OUTLOOK.

EUROPE BEATING BACK

But Government Meddling in Industry Must Stop, Says President of U. S. C. of C.

Detroit, May 25.—The Fourteenth Annual National Foreign Trade Convention, having as its keynote the cementation of Anglo-American trade relations, opened here today with approximately 2,000 executives of American foreign trade concerns representing 42 states in attendance.

James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation and chairman of the National Foreign Trade Council since its beginning in Washington in 1914, called the general session to order in the new Masonic Temple auditorium.

A general review of trade conditions since the World War and an optimistic outlook for tomorrow for world trade, marked the address of Julius H. Barnes of New York, former president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Barnes' speech was the first of a list of some forty other distinguished authorities who will talk during the three day sessions.

Attacks Soviet Russia.

Barnes arraigned the Communistic Soviet Government of Russia and praised American idealism which "refused to sell its birthright of international honesty in relations for the curdled mess of pottage of Russian trade."

He declared that Europe had two of the three major requisites for a people to attain their position in the social scale, but lacked the third—stable government.

"They have first," Barnes said, "natural resources. Second, habits of industry, but lack third, stable and sound governments.

"What a kaleidoscopic spectacle Europe has presented since the armistice. The great area of Russia still today holding its people in a state barely above barbarism because of government theories of communistic tyranny. Abortive attempts to establish communistic despotism in Hungary, Poland, Germany; substantial suspension of democratic government through theories of socialism in government which nearly wrecked Austria, Hungary, Italy, Poland and Germany; successive revolutions for the aggrandizement of individual leaders which undermined productive effort in Greece and the Balkans; established dictatorships today which make for the appearance of present stability but carry the seeds of future possible revolution and industrial chaos in Spain, Italy, Hungary, Poland, Greece, and the astounding incident of a general strike in Britain, fortunately collapsed when impaled on the common sense of Anglo-Saxon character.

Europe Regaining Confidence.

"But, broadly speaking, Europe today is developing industry and trade with a new confidence under generally stable conditions of government. This is the present-day reflection in constantly reducing bank rates."

Barnes then compared Great Britain and its workers with America. He discussed the Mackenzie Mission of Great Britain's report, and agreed in its findings but declared they overlooked the major reason underlying confidence of Americans in establishing new industries and expanding old ones.

"The major reason for this life giving confidence," Barnes said, "is the National philosophy that prohibits to government the deadly menace of government competition in any field of private industry.

"Some day, perhaps, Europe will realize that government employment doles, government pensions, government rules for regulating the relations between employer and workers, have robbed industry of the initiative and energy which makes for such confident ventures and has as well undermined the individual reliance of the worker himself."

Barnes showed by figures that America for each thousand of its population possesses 8½ times as many telephones, uses 11½ times as much electricity, owns 30 times as many automobiles and twice as many homes with 1-20th as many people on the public charity as Great Britain.

New Denver Train Makes Quick Time

A new train to be operated by the Union Pacific system between Omaha and Denver after June 5, will give Maryville travelers a direct connection, enabling them to leave here in the early morning and reach Denver the same night, according to H. K. Proudfit, traveling passenger agent for the Union Pacific system.

Mr. Proudfit, here yesterday, pointed out that the new train would permit the saving of $6.30 sleeper fare between Maryville and Denver. Wabash train No. 11, leaving here at 4:05 o'clock each morning, will connect at Omaha with the Denver special, leaving there at 8:20 a. m. and reaching Denver at 8:30 p. m. the same day.

Stars Foretell Re-Election of Coolidge

Washington, May 25.—Stars fortell President Coolidge's reelection, Madame Marcia, noted astrologist told the United Press in an exclusive interview.

Next year when the Republican convention and the elections are held the planets will be in the strongest possible position for the president, she said.

Madame Marcia predicted that Coolidge would win the nomination of his party hands down. She doubted that he would have any strong competition in his party.

The president is a good fighter according to Madame Marcia. He is cautious but discreetly generous and always just. He is very methodical and dependable. He will stick to principles to prove they are right. He worries over criticism but never lets anyone know it.

ARRANGE 1928 CAGE SEASON

BEARCAT BASKETBALL SCHEDULE TO BE BETTER BALANCED

TO OPEN WITH MULES

First Two Games Will Be Played at Home.—Fewer Non-Conference Contests.

An advantageous basketball schedule has been arranged for the 1928 cage quintet at the State Teachers College, according to H. Frank Lawrence, director of athletics.

Beginning with games with the Warrensburg State Teachers College Mules at Maryville, on January 20 and 21, and continuing until March 3, when Kirksville will be met at Kirksville, the schedule is better balanced this year than it has been in the past, Mr. Lawrence said.

There will be a week of rest after the first two conference games, and then the Bearcats will play a pair of contests at Cape Girardeau on January 27 and 28.

The week following will witness another road trip for the Maryville team, when it will be in action twice against Springfield, on February 2 and 3.

On February 9, Cape Girardeau will play at Maryville, and the night following Springfield will be entertained on the local court.

Another week of rest will follow, and then Kirksville will come here for a pair of games, on February 17 and 18.

Warrensburg will be met at Warrensburg on February 23 as the next to last contest of the season.

Mr. Lawrence intends to send his cagers through about four or five non-conference games, making his total either sixteen or seventeen.

"Last year we played eighteen games during the actual season and three in the National Tournament," Coach Lawrence said. "I would rather cut that number somewhat next year than to have my team playing hard non-conference games just before crucial conference struggles."

A. W. Van Valkenburg, secretary of the aeronautical society suggested that the flight might be extended to Australia or Japan.
